

Founders of Coalition America, Inc. Inducted into University of Kentucky Hall of Fame

Atlanta, GA (April 18, 2011)— On Friday, April 15, 2011, Sean Smith, chairman, and Scott Smith, chief executive officer of Coalition America, Inc., a privately owned, Atlanta based company, were two of six alumni inducted into the University of Kentucky Gatton College of Business and Economics Alumni Hall of Fame.

“Induction into the Gatton Hall of Fame is a prestigious honor for our business school alumni,” said D. Sudharshan, dean of the college. “These six outstanding graduates are most deserving of this recognition. They represent dedication and integrity in the business world and in the greater community in which they live. The University of Kentucky is privileged to count these individuals among its alumni.”

Mollie Gordon Brown, president of Coalition America, says “Sean and Scott Smith took a dream and made it reality. Their dedication, vision, and exemplary leadership have established the foundation for even greater achievements in the future. It is my honor and pleasure to help build on their framework.”

Sean and Scott graduated in 1990 with Bachelor of Business Administration degrees in Finance. They formed Coalition America in 1995.
